Report on NSW Central Coast, Hunter Valley, Newcastle & Port Stevens
7-12 September 2025
Bev. Olbrich, Co-ordinator, Extended Trips & Tours

It was a chilly Sunday morning when 27 Tunstall Probus members were spirited away at 6 am to the airport to be met by Sue Grady, our Trade Travel host. A quick flight to Sydney to be met by our driver and guide, Gordon who had the most amazing set of credentials (for a bus driver!). There seemed nothing he hadn't done in his life, from being an academic, science teacher, marine biologist, historian, to name but a few. His breadth and depth of knowledge just amazed us and added so much to our journey. A local historian in Paramatta showed us the historic sites, including Old Government House. Our first night was spent at a comfortable motel next to the RSL in Gosford.

After a full breakfast we travelled along the Central Coast stopping at the Henry Kendall Cottage and Historical Museum for a very informative tour and talk, which was followed by an exhibition of the world-renowned Australian Landscape photographer, Ken Duncan. After continuing travelling along the Central Coast highway through The Entrance, Swansea and along the shores of Lake Macquarie, we arrived at our accommodation (Old Maitland Inn), for the next four days in Maitland.

Day three, we visited the historic Tocal Homestead, a heritage site with one of Australia's finest collections of colonial farm buildings dating back to the 1830's. What made visiting these historical sites even more interesting was the fact that we had retired professional people volunteering their time and knowledge to bring these places to life, (not to mention the local gossip of the time).

Our visit to the RAAF Williamtown Aviation Heritage centre was a winner with everyone. As we sat under cover outdoors eating our lunch, we were entertained with a spectacular display by the F-35A Fighter planes (at a cost of $300 million each). There were at least 8, one after the other manoeuvring in the paddock in front of us. The thrill of watching them take off and land some 20 minutes later, sent one's chest pumping with the vibration. Amazing to have been present at this time. The museum was pretty awesome too.

I never thought I would have been so impressed when we visited the Christ Church Cathedral, where the Very Reverend Katherine Bowyer, Dean of Newcastle, brought the history (which began in 1812) to life. So many artifacts are on show here (for example, the original flag from Gallipoli, plus many other flags of which I cannot recall the details, along with a solid gold bible cover made from the molten down gold rings of deceased servicemen and women of the first world war plus numerous other priceless objects.

Up until Day 4, we had been blessed by lovely warm weather but that wasn't to last as we travelled to Pokolbin, home to the stunning Hunter Valley Gardens, some 14 acres created by a team, of over 40 landscape gardeners, architects and engineers. It was absolutely stunning despite the rain and under our umbrellas and avoiding puddles. Regrettably, the duration of the visit was brief. After a visit to the Hunter Valley Gardens Shopping Village, we then visited McGuigan Wines for a tasting. What else to you do on a wet afternoon!

Day 5 – well, the weather was not our friend and our visit to the Port Stevens Marina and Dolphin watch cruise, and the Stockton Beach Dunes along with the Port Stevens 4WD tours, were consequently cancelled. As you can imagine this was a nightmare for Sue and Gordon. What to do/entertain 27 people! With some imagination and knowledge, we were not disappointed, filling in the day taking in the surrounds and visiting the Shell Museum (who knew that cone shells were poisonous? I didn't). We learnt so much more from our knowledgeable driver. We visited the old town of Morpeth and were enlightened of the town's history by a very knowledgeable local woman as we sat in the courthouse/museum.

Day 6 didn't disappoint and was a highlight for Robyn and I, as this tour had been on our bucket list. It was a beautiful warm sunny day as we boarded the Riverboat Postman, Australia's last operating mail boat and a great way to get a feel of the Hawkesbury River as it chugged the 40 kms up the river from Brooklyn to as far as Marlow delivering mail and other essentials to the river access only settlements.

Sadly, all good things came to an end as we headed back to Sydney to catch our flight to Melbourne, arriving back at the Whitehorse Centre at 8.15 pm. A very memorable trip had by all. Thanks to Sue Grady (Trade Travel and the team back at the office) for her constant counting and caring, not to mention last minute major changes to the itinerary.
